

SEJA

Social and Environmental Justice in Action Academy An English and Social Studies Academy in the 11th and 12th grade

The SEJA program provides students an opportunity for in-depth exploration of social and environmental issues. While students are exploring the challenges, perspectives and experiences of diverse communities, they will also learn about the historical and current challenges and plan actions to address social and environmental injustice.

- SEJA students are passionate about human rights, environmental justice and ethics, social justice, and uplifting diverse voices and perspectives. We are committed to being an anti-racist, open-minded, and collaborative environment.
- SEJA is a two year learning community, following the model of the CORE program where an English and Social Studies teacher collaborate around curriculum, instruction, and support for students.
- If a student indicates interest while scheduling, they will be entered into a lottery. Consideration will be given to enrolling a community of students who represent diverse backgrounds, experiences, and perspectives. Although at this time there is no application process, we require all students to sign a code of conduct.

Email Tessa Altshuler, Matt LemMon, Jon Hartquist, or Mike Levinson if you have any questions.